BRITAIN DEMANDS REVENGE ON NAZIS FOR COVENTRY RAID

"The Nazis Must Pay," is The Cry of The Country's Press

NAZIS' NEW THREATS Warning Given That Industrial And Military Key Points Will Be Levelled

By Charles A. Smith
(L. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Nov. 16—Cries for revenge rang out in Britain today as the nation counted 1,000 casualties in Coventry's still smoking ruins and surveyed the wreckage of a savage new attack upon London, the heaviest the capital has endured in weeks.

Newspapers in London and all over the country demanded reprisals. The London Daily Herald trumpeted the keynote:

"The Nazis must pay."
New scars defaced wide areas of the capital as a result of the Nazi night assault, which followed up the Coventry attack with deadly ferocity.

Seven hospitals, three hotels, two convents, two motion picture theatres and one school were among the targets blasted by the German bombers.

Despite the extent of the attack, authorities asserted no vital services had

Turn Down Suggestion Of Any Merger With Phila.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16—(INS)—Bucks, Delaware and Montgomery county officials today were among those joining the chorus of protest against any suggestion that Philadelphia absorb their suburbs.

The whole thing was started by Roland S. Morris, a member of the Philadelphia City Board of Trustees, in an address before the National Association of Real Estate Boards convention here. Morris complained that thousands of Philadelphia workers live in surrounding counties and pay their taxes there instead of to this city.

Abington township, Montgomery county, was the first to turn down the suggestion of consolidation. Ernest H. Harvey, clerk of Bucks County Commissioners, promptly added his protest.

"The most ridiculous suggestion I ever heard," he said, "Philadelphia will have to meet its own financial troubles. Our tax rate is one of the lowest in the State, which is why more city folks are moving out here every day."

"We will be very pleased to give Philadelphia the formula for efficient and economical government, but as for merger—no thank you, Mr. Morris," answered the Ardmore-Lower Merion Chronicle in Montgomery county.

"I'm against it until hell freezes," said James B. Miller, president of the Delaware County Commission. "We'd be absorbed and forgotten. Mr. Morris saw financial ruin descending on Philadelphia. He should have done something earlier."

Four Held for Stealing Gasoline From P. R. R. Co.

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 16—Four Trentonians are in the Bucks County Prison awaiting trial at the next term of criminal court on charges of stealing gasoline from drums on Pennsylvania Railroad property at Wheatshaf tool house last Saturday night when they were reported caught in the act.

Incarcerated in default of $1,000 bail apiece, the men are Frank Miele, 22, 548 Perry street, Stanley J. Mikolajczyk, 18, 424 Clyde avenue, Henry A. Dziura, 22, 303 Klagg avenue, and Leonard Prusko, 19, of 22 Plum St.

They were arrested by railroad police and Pennsylvania Motor Police of the Oxford Valley sub-station, and given a hearing before Justice of the Peace John Melvin.

MORRISVILLE PLANS TO FINANCE MAINS

Applicants for Water Service
Must Pay in Advance for Extension of Pipe Lines

REFUNDED FROM RENTS

MORRISVILLE, Nov. 16—Morrisville Borough Council has adopted a plan providing for financing the laying of new water mains in newly-developed sections of the borough. A resolution was adopted in connection with this plan.

The resolution provides that the applicant must pay in advance to the borough the cost of the extension and any and all rents collected from the extension be credited to the applicant until the rentals equalize the amount of deposit, when the deposit will then be returned to the applicant. If at the end of 10 years such collections have not equaled the cost of the main, the applicant will be refunded only such collections derived therefrom and the contract terminated.

Borough Engineer Harry H. Lee, Jr., was authorized to set up a WPA project.

Variety of Gifts Given To Mrs. John Austin

The decorations were in blue and pink. A platter supper was served, and favors were small baskets and miniature umbrellas.

Those attending: Mrs. Webster Bray, Mrs. Carl Nelson, Jr., Mrs. Emma Colgan, Mrs. Mary Koval, Mrs. George Long, Mrs. Dominick Nocito, the Misses Julia Hutchinson, Irene Sharp, Wilhelmina Peters, Thelma and Mildred Goheen, Jennie Paolini, Martha Prael, Emily Colgan, Betty Beswick, Katherine Marino.

May Be Immunized For Blood Donors' Purposes

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 16—Members of the Doayapoo Club of Doylestown, a group of young business men, are considering submitting themselves to immunization for blood donors' purposes.

Addressing the club yesterday, Dr. Allen H. Moore, local physician, urged the club members to consider the proposition and to look favorably upon it. The project includes scientific, humane and commercial phases.

The plan is to submit to a series of weekly injections and in that way build up immunization for a number of blood stream infections and diseases. After the club members have been built up to a point where they are more thoroughly immunized than any sufferer of the disease ever could be, the Doayapoo and blood would prove valuable during any epidemic of disease and they could be called upon to contribute blood anywhere in the United States.

In cases where remuneration is possible the club members would be paid for their blood donations and a scheme worked out whereby the laboratory technician, club members and club will receive pay.

After the next meeting of the club, when the idea will be further discussed by a national authority, the unique project will be given nationwide publicity in medical circles, for this is the first group in the country to consider an immunization plan.

HISTORICAL ADDRESS

DEED BY WHICH STATE ACQUIRES CANAL, READY

Final Check-Up and Signatures of State Officials All That Is Needed

BRISTOL TO EASTON

The deed by which the State of Pennsylvania will take over the Delaware Division Canal from Bristol to a point above Easton has been received by deputy attorney general, Harrington Adams, from William A. Schnader, Philadelphia, counsel for the Delaware Division Canal Company.

The territory covered includes lands in Bucks and Northampton Counties, the greater portion being in Bucks County.

A final check-up by Mr. Adams, and signatures of G. Albert Stewart, Forests and Waters Secretary, and Governor James, is all that is needed on the 43-page document to complete the deal.

An act of the 1939 Legislature allows the State to receive the property from the company free of charge. In a good state of preservation, this last canal, symbol of an earlier State-wide transportation system, will be converted into a recreation area, Adams said.

BANQUET SERVED

Speculate Over Sabotage On German Ships

Tampico, Mexico, Nov. 16—Speculation was rife here today over the possibility that British secret agents may have sabotaged two of the four German ships that made a midnight dash out of the harbor in an attempt to reach a friendly European port.

One of the ships was reported afire 15 miles off the coast and another was being towed back to port as the result of engine trouble.

There were no indications that any British warships had attacked the German vessels. Neutral maritime circles were inclined to believe British agents may have sabotaged the German ships before they left.

The German freighters, which departed suddenly and mysteriously after spending 14 months in the harbor here, were the Phrygia, Orinoco, Rhein and Idarwald.

The Orinoco reported engine trouble and a Mexican tug went to its assistance. The identity of the ship on fire was not definitely known, but it was believed to be the Phrygia.

Members of the crew of the British vessel, Olive Bank, anchored in the port here, have been maintaining a close watch over the four German ships. As soon as the vessels were seen moving out, the British ship started sending wireless messages.

It is possible that a British warship may have been waiting for the German ships outside the harbor, but there have been no reports here to indicate the presence of one.

The German ships obtained clearance papers yesterday. Three of them reported the Canary Islands as their destination and the fourth claimed it was going to Vigo, Spain.

Prominent Quakertown Man Dies

DOYLESTOWN HEALTH BOARD URGES SEWER CONNECTIONS

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 16—The board of health of this borough has adopted a resolution whereby outside toilets will be eliminated. A census is to be taken of the number of such buildings in the county seat, then the owners notified to connect with the sewer system.

"Doylestown is a healthy community in which to live and the best way to keep it healthy is for the borough to see that the outside toilets are eliminated immediately," declared Dr. John J. Sweeney, president of the board.

Borough Council, it was pointed out, has an ordinance fully covering the sewer connection situation in Doylestown, and the Board is desirous in co-operating with Council in the campaign to eliminate outside toilets entirely within the borough.

EDDINGTON PASTOR ADDRESSES AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT

EDDINGTON, Nov. 16—An open letter addressed to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, was the sermon topic, on Sunday, of the Rev. Arthur D. Sargis, pastor of the Eddington Presbyterian Church. The letter was read from the pulpit and today was released for publication.

The letter follows:
Mr. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, President of the United States, Hyde Park, New York.
Dear Mr. President:

This is an open letter to you, the newly elected president of the United States, from me, a Presbyterian minister and one proud to be the pastor of the Eddington Presbyterian Church in Eddington, Pennsylvania.

Accept my heartiest congratulations upon achieving such a notable victory. But the times are too serious, you will agree, to spend too much thought and space here and now upon analyzing your unique triumph. I have a worthy objective in view.

On election eve you crowned your closing remarks with the reading of the following "old prayer" which asks the guidance of God for our nation:

Almighty God, who has given us this good land for our heritage; we humbly beseech Thee that we may always prove ourselves a people mindful of Thy favor and glad to do Thy will. Bless our land with honorable industry, sound learning and pure manners. Save us from violence, discord and confusion; from pride and arrogance; and from every evil way. Defend our liberties and fashion into one united people the multitudes brought hither out of many kindreds and tongues. Endue with the spirit of wisdom those to whom in Thy name we intrust the authority of government, that there may be justice and peace at home, and that through obedience to Thy law, we may show forth Thy praise among the nations of the earth.

In the time of prosperity fill our hearts with thankfulness, and in the day of trouble, suffer not our trust in Thee to fail. Amen.

Mr. President, that hour before midnight I shall never forget. I, on bended knee, prayed with you. The more I think about that moment the more I am impressed with its uniqueness. Never have I ever heard any or of any president leading his people before the throne of grace.

Prayers are to be heard by God and

RARE SHAWLS FORM A BRILLIANT "PAGEANT"

Beautiful Ones From All Parts of World Are Shown to Travel Club

RECEPTION TO JUNIORS

With cashmere shawls from India, silk shawls from China, beautiful paisley ones from Persia and Turkey, brilliantly embroidered ones from Italy, plaids from Scotland, and dainty Chantilly lace models from France, a "Pageant of Shawls" was presented last evening in the Travel Club home, when the club entertained at a reception in honor of the Junior Travel Club.

So numerous were the fine shawls taken to the club home for the occasion by members and sent by friends of the club, that not more than half of them could be modelled for the occasion; but so keen was interest on the part of the women gathered that questions were asked relative of each, as the owners donned the shawls at the conclusion of the program.

In extending a welcome, Mrs. William Dufamel, president of the Travel Club, remarked as she looked at the array of shawls from all corners of the globe, that "Things are only valuable in the memories they evoke." She then presented to the gathering Mrs. Theodore B. Megargee, who had charge of the pageant of shawls.

Mrs. Megargee, who had ably outlined the presentation in a most interesting manner, told how the shawl was first used for warmth, it possibly being the outgrowth of a fur draped over the shoulders of the woman when humanity dwelt in caves. "It gradually became a piece of adornment, and is now universally used, again coming into favor in this country as a fashionable piece of wearing apparel."

"Shawls have been used for warmth and beauty down through the years—these two things have made history. Industry was changed from time to time, and business boomed, as shawls came back in demand." The manner in which the old nations of the far East used shawls, the cashmeres from India, with women carding and spinning the yarn, then entire families working for years and perhaps a lifetime to complete a rare specimen, was spoken of. In early France the shawls were imported, Mrs. Megargee informed, the saying "How nicely draped she is!" being frequently heard in those days. Eventually China made shawls for the world, "but," added the speaker, "China is the only nation that doesn't use the shawl as such. Yet some of our finest shawls come from China." The women were much interested as their co-member explained how this universal article of clothing or adornment has travelled through the cycles of fashion.

Among those who modelled the rare and beautiful shawls gathered for the occasion were: Mrs. Thomas B. Knox, Mrs. William A. Groff, Mrs. George C. Cudhea, Mrs. E. Linton Martin, Miss

What the classified advertisements do for others, they will do for you. The low cost will surprise you.

LEAVES ESTATE TO WIDOW AND EIGHT CHILDREN HERE

Anna E. Arcolesse, Bristol, Is Granted Letters of Administration in Husband's Estate

DR. KUNSMAN'S WILL

Morrisville Physician Left Bequests to Seven Churches,
Six Being in Morrisville

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 16—The widow, Anna, and eight children, Nelson, Florence, Adeline, Gertrude, Victor, Joseph and Henry Arcolesse, and Angelina Williams will inherit the estate of Alfonso Arcolesse, Bristol. Letters of administration in the estate have been granted to Anna E. Arcolesse, 915 Wood street, Bristol.

Dr. William H. Kunsman, of Morrisville, who died October 6 and left an estate of $14,000, made bequests to seven churches, including Protestant and Catholic, and six of which are in Morrisville, according to his will probated in the Register of Wills office here.

To the Methodist-Episcopal Church in Morrisville, and the Ironville Church, Lower Saucon township, Northampton county, the testator left bequests of $100 each.

Five Morrisville churches all of which were given bequests of $25 each, include the Italian Church, Catholic church, Baptist, Presbyterian and Episcopal churches.

Three brothers, Seward, Jacob and John P. Kunsman, and two sisters, Mary Frantz and Annie Zoller, were each bequeathed $100. A cousin, E. P. Zeifenfoos, Bethlehem, was given a bequest of $25.

The residue will be inherited by a daughter, Katherine Busche, 38 East Bridge street, Morrisville, with the provision that she take care of the testator's widow, Mary C. Kunsman, as long as she lives. The daughter was also named executrix.

Mrs. Emma Williams, 12 Ferry Road, Lower Makefield township, will inherit the $100 personal estate of Don R. Williams, Lower Makefield township.

The widow was bequeathed the $1173 personal estate of Elmer E. Twining, Bensalem township. The Peoples National Bank and Trust Company of Langhorne was named executor.

Lambert Rose, of Solebury, who died November 15, 1939, and left a $50 personal estate and real estate valued at $800, in a joint will, executed by him and his wife, Rosanna, named Elsie Mae Rose and William MacNeal the heirs. William MacNeal was named the executor.

COURTING COY RUSSIA

Soviet Russia is playing so coy a role in the struggle between the totalitarian powers and the democratic nations—that Stalin is not engaged in swallowing neighboring nations—that attempts are being made on all sides to court her. This was shown by the reception given at Washington by Ambassador Oumansky to celebrate the twenty-third anniversary of the bolshevik revolution. Nine hundred guests were in attendance. Last year at a similar affair few persons, and none of prominence, appeared.

There are forces in Great Britain which would actively seek the aid of Russia and only recently they have blamed Lord Halifax for not bringing about Russian co-operation with Britain. But Lord Halifax apparently clearly sees what Russian assistance would mean. It would, for one thing, force Britain to present a contradictory picture to the world regarding its objectives in the current war.

It is extraordinarily difficult to see how the present struggle could be pictured as a battle for the democratic way of life if totalitarian and dictatorial Russia were to join actively in the Allied cause. It is hard to see how it could be presented as a battle against unjust aggression if the cruel fenshish aggressor, Russia, the butcher of neutral nations and the enemy of freedom in all departments of life, were to become a partner of the Allies.

There also is a grave question whether Russia would constitute a valuable ally for the democratic powers. Its armies look impressive, no doubt, in Red Square—but they did not look particularly impressive on the Karelian Peninsula when they were up against the small army of little Finland, a nation of dwarfish proportions beside the Russian bear. And if the democratic powers, aided by Russia, won the war, the Soviet would be a most troublesome partner when the conflict was over. Britain and Germany and Italy would be weakened almost to the point of death. It is possible that Russia then would assume its usual role of scavenger-in-chief. It might overrun weakened Europe, destroy Western civilization utterly and bring the entire continent down to its own level.

NOT READY FOR STATEHOOD

Unofficial but complete reports count 59,324 votes cast in Hawaii's statehood plebiscite. The division in favor of entering the Union as a state is 39,413 to 19,911. The addition to the Union of more states is a subject of national concern. That is all the more true because the chief possible additions are islands, not contiguous to the present states.

The vote in Hawaii bears on whether Congress should grant statehood only as reflection of local desires. The opposition by a third of the home vote indicates extensive local opinion holding Hawaii should not become the forty-ninth state. A total vote of less than 60,000—located several thousand miles from the mainland—looks exceedingly small to have power to elect a member of Congress and two Senators. It would seem highly unlikely that Congress could seriously consider Hawaii's bid for statehood.

A hound for efficiency says thousands of tons of sugar are left annually in the bottoms of trucks. But it all comes out in the wash, except in the Greasy Spoon.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

"Oh, by the way," said Mrs. Fleming, as casually as though the matter had only that instant occurred to her, "I have a message for you from Edward. He asked me to say goodbye to you for him and make his apologies for not saying it in person. He wanted to come and see you before you went, but the poor boy was in such a rush that he had hardly time to say goodbye to me."

"Goodbye!" echoed Dorothy, white to the lips. "I—I don't understand."

"No, you'd hardly have heard, would you? It was all so sudden. You see, Mr. Fleming's firm is carrying through some delicate negotiations in Washington on behalf of a Bradbury manufacturer and, since Edward joined the firm recently, his father thought it would be good experience for him to assist in the negotiations."

"Oh!" Crushed and subdued, that murmured "Oh!"

"He left right after lunch and is on his way to Washington now."

"It's terribly sudden."

"Sudden? Well, yes."

"How long will he be gone?"

"I really don't know, my dear. Six months or a year at least, perhaps more. There is a possibility that when he leaves Washington he will go into the office of a New York law firm for a few years, for the sake of experience."

"I see."

Mrs. Fleming leaned forward and placed a cool hand on the girl's arm. "I know it must be a shock to you, my dear, to find that your childhood playmate has grown up and gone away, but none of us stay children forever, you know, and men have work in the world to do. I shall always be grateful to you and your family for taking him into your home as a child and making him one of you. I know he regards you all almost as brothers and sisters. An only child can be very lonely, and you have done more for him than I can say—but he is not a child any longer and his world has grown far beyond the limits of this little village."

"Why do you emphasize the word 'child'?" asked Dorothy unsteadily. "I am twenty-five and I am twenty-three. Neither of us have been children for quite a long time."

Before replying, Mrs. Fleming took time to pour fresh tea.

"You are both very young and inexperienced," she said at last. "Charmingly young and inexperienced. You are a nice girl and Edward is a nice boy. You are fond of each other. If you have imagined that your feelings were deeper, that is not surprising. You have spent a great deal of time in each other's company and it is only natural that love should enter into the relationship. But young love is calf love and, although calf love is very charming and delightful, it seldom endures. I expect you will both fall in and out of love many times before either of you chooses a permanent mate. That is half the charm of youth; the inconsequence with which it passes from one love affair to another like a butterfly flitting from flower to flower."

With heavy heart, Dorothy put a hand inside the neck of her dress and drew up a thin gold chain. She detached from it a gold seal ring which she placed on the table.

"Ted gave me this," she said, dryly, lifelessly. "He asked me to keep it until he could replace it with a proper engagement ring. Will you please give it back to him?"

She turned to go but Mrs. Fleming called her back.

"Don't think too harshly of me," need? Is the church doing what Christ would have it do?"

The annual every-member canvass starts Sunday and continues throughout the week.

my dear. Edward is my only child and his well-being is very dear to me. Please don't misunderstand me: I have nothing against you personally. You are a sweet girl; the kind of girl, indeed, I have always hoped Edward would marry. But, don't you see—

"Yes," said Dorothy. "I see. Yesterday my aunt was murdered in my father's house and today the papers are full of it. Today I'm one of a notorious family. You don't care about my feelings as long as your son is freed from what I suppose you'd call an entanglement."

"I am his mother. My son must come first with me. This is a matter that concerns his whole future."

"And mine," murmured Dorothy, with a sob in her voice.

"I know, my dear; and, believe me, I am sorry for you. I am afraid you are in for a terrible time. There will be a great deal of mud thrown and some of it is bound to stick. Life will be unbearable for you. I have an idea. An old friend of mine winters every year in Florida and she writes me that she's looking for a companion for her daughter, who is a little younger than you. I'm sure if I suggested it, she'd be only too glad to take you. You would be away from all the unpleasantness which is sure to surround your family. Down there, with my friend, no one would dream of connecting you with this terrible affair."

"You are very kind," said Dorothy; "but—no, thanks. Just now you said that it was your duty to think of your son. It is equally my duty to think of my family. At a time of trouble my place is with them."

"I feel quite sure your mother would rather you were out of it all."

"I know she would, but that is not the point. If my father and mother, my brothers and sisters, are to suffer, I shall suffer with them."

In the stress of her emotion, Dorothy forgot the sensation-seeking pack outside her home. Her eyes misty with tears, she came out to the Flemings' gate, turned right along the road, and ran straight into it. She almost had to fight her way through the surging mob which shoved and scrambled for a glimpse of her.

"Look! There she is."

"That's the old girl."

"It was her scarf the murder was done with—"

"Look! She's crying!"

Blinded by tears, Dorothy stumbled into the house. She went into the dining room, collapsing on an old leather couch in a corner. There Ann and Michael found her, quivering with pain, torn from head to foot by great shuddering sobs.

"Dorothy!" cried Ann, panic-stricken. "Dorothy, darling!"

"What is it?" gasped Michael. "The crowd outside, I suppose? Gee, I'd like to shoot 'em all!"

"It isn't 'em all!" wept Dorothy. "It's Ted as well."

"Ted?" frowned Michael. "What's he done?"

"He's gone away."

"The worm!" declared Ann, with a shriek in her tone.

"Don't say that. It isn't true."

"Only a worm would wriggle away at a time like this."

"His parents made him."

"The snobs!" cried Ann. "No, they're not snobs," said Dorothy, more calmly. "They aren't deliberately doing this to hurt me. It's only that they've got to think of their son; he comes first."

"If Ted were half a man he'd have told them to go to blazes," growled Michael. "Ditching you because they're afraid of the scandal! Oh, it's all so unfair. It isn't as though you'd done anything. It isn't as though any of us had done anything."

"Isn't it?" asked Ann quietly. "They stared at her."

"What do you mean?"

"You don't think an outsider killed Aunt Octavia, do you?" Ann asked coolly.

"Ann, how can you talk like that!"

"Use your heads, my children. No one had an opportunity of killing her except us Osbornes, Hannah Gale, and Miss Mimms. You don't think Mimms would kill her and throw away five thousand a year for life, do you—even if she had the nerve, which she hasn't? That leaves us Osbornes—and Hannah, and she's one of the family."

"The police are playing a game of 'Who's Got the Button' with us. They know one of us did it and they're going to move heaven and earth to find out which. Are we going to help them? I wonder—"

"But, Ann—" interrupted Dorothy.

"It's a question of someone's life," continued Ann. "The life of one of us. Father, Mother, Marjory, Peter, Hannah, you, Dorothy; you, Michael—and me. Do we care which of us did it? Do we? Are we going to help hand the guilty one?"

"Lord, no!" shuddered Michael. "Very well, then; what should we say or do?"

"Ann!" gasped Dorothy suddenly. "It wasn't—You didn't—"

"That," said Ann very earnestly, "is a question none of us must ask of another."

Monday morning.
A bell clanged in the grim old room of county police headquarters, situated in a town eight miles from Lakeland and roughly the same distance from Bradbury. It sounded again.

"Two rings," said Sergeant Feathers, looking up from his desk. "That's you, Inspector."

"I've got ears, my boy."

Inspector Burrows rose ponderously and left the room. He plodded along a whitewashed passage and pushed open a door.

The Sheriff's room was more like a study than an office. The floor was covered by a fawn carpet, tailored to fit snugly the angles and eccentricities of the base-boards. Beneath the window lay a magnificent Alsatian dog which pricked its ears, half rose, and growled softly at the Inspector's entrance. Sheriff Black spoke to it sharply and it lay down again, stretching full-length, its black eyes fixed unblinkingly on Inspector Burrows's face. Round the walls, hung a collection of sporting prints; and in a corner stood a cigar cabinet. In the centre of the room stood a walnut desk, on which a morning newspaper was spread out. Inspector Burrows flinched slightly as his eyes lighted on it.

"Mornin', Burrows," said Sheriff Black coldly. He was standing straddle-legged beside the desk.

"Good mornin', Sheriff."

"Seen the papers?"

"One or two of 'em."

"Well?"

"Well"—the Inspector shifted uncomfortably—"they seem to agree pretty well with my—with our theory."

"And what is our theory?"

"Well, Sheriff, we know almost to a certainty that one of the family committed the murder."

Mr. President. Your four petitions were:

1. Bless our land.
  2. Save us from harm.
  3. Defend our liberties.
  4. Endue, with wisdom, our leaders.
- I wish, with your permission, to take these petitions up in the order named.
- The First Petition—Bless Our Land
Our land has been marvelously blessed and I believe we ought to bless God for America in the three ways you mentioned.

First by Honorable Industry—
I do hope that the really industrious unemployed, in my community and elsewhere, will find gainful employment in the days ahead. I do hope, and pray, that the unemployed will be treated as people, free and equal, and not as a mass, subject and enslaved, and not as an abstract political problem. Honor in industry is being demanded by an awakened Christian America. Good wages for good workers. A fair profit for both capital and labor and for manufacturer and worker. Co-operation instead of conflict. Consideration in the place of contempt. Public service rather than private gain.

Second by Sound Learning—
The soundest learning, as you so well know, and the true goal of all intellectual endeavor is to know God and to obey His revealed will as we have it in the Holy Scriptures and most perfectly in the person of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. The Psalmist puts it succinctly in Psalm 111:10: "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom" and his son, the wisest of men, Solomon, in Ecclesiastes 12:13 advises us to "hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man." That, Mr. President, is sound learning. Without that emphasis the whole fabric of our campus life, the warp and woof of it, will deteriorate when confronted with life's real questions such as: the origin, nature, duty and destiny of man as well as his place in society.

Third by Pure Manners—
We do need good manners. Dirt thrown is so much ground lost. We are, it seems, more polite toward one another than we are toward God. It is bad manners to disregard the Lord's Day, the Christian Sabbath. So many, in high places, have no reverence for Sunday. I hope, Mr. President, you will set a high example for official America.

The Second Petition—Save Us From Harm
You mention six different kinds of harm.

Save us from violence—meaning, I suppose, physical conflict. I can not see how we can pray this clause when we seem to be doing everything within our power to keep the European fires burning by supplying the belligerents with implements of war. Why can not we really pray this petition and help to fulfill our prayer by establishing an Arms Embargo. If we want to be saved from violence, we must work, and not pray only, for peace.

Save us from Discord—meaning, I suppose, different goals. I do pray, with you, for unity. Our goals must be clear and true. Discord will arise when the people are not considered.

Save us from Confusion—meaning, I suppose, ungrounded fears. I do pray that provocative words, on the part of our representatives, will come to an end. Most people have their feet on the ground and many leaders seem gifted in promoting panic and fears. I shall pray, with you, to be saved from confusion.

Save us from Pride—meaning, I suppose, conceit. The Bible speaks of pride going before a fall. May our pride be in the many blessings we have received from God and may we be humble in the face of such Divine favor. It is great to be an American, but, Mr. President, it is greater to be a Christian American.

Save us from Arrogance—meaning, I suppose, haughtiness. We have seen arrogance clothed upon and their subjects, willing or otherwise, give them titles that belong to God Almighty alone. May God give our people and our leaders a contrite spirit and a humble heart.

Save us from Every Evil Way—calling to mind the words of our Lord when He taught His disciples to pray, saying, "...and deliver us from evil." I believe, with you, that righteousness exalteth a nation and that sin is a reproach to any people. May God hear your prayer and mine as we pray this petition together and say "...deliver us from evil."

The Third Petition—Defend Our Liberties

And fashion into one united people the multitudes brought hither out of many kindreds and tongues? What a beautiful petition. We recognize God to be our Defense and our Four Freedoms to be defended, which are so vital to Americans, are:

1. Freedom of Worship.
2. Freedom of Speech.
3. Freedom of the Press, and
4. Freedom of Assembly.

We do thank God that we, in America, still have these blessings and do pray for their continuance here and their spread to other lands. Then, Mr. President, you prayed that this land of many tongues and kindreds with diverse views and varied manners of life might truly be the melting pot of the world and out of the crucible might flow forth an America united and determined to make this Western Wall of Democracy the haven for all oppressed people and our Status of Enlightened Liberty the symbol of hope for all humanity and for all time. We do not confuse Christianity with Democracy but we do believe that democracy, and the democratic processes, is the closest to Christianity of all other known forms of government.

The Fourth Petition—Endue, with Wisdom, Our Leaders

This was the petition of Solomon when he was entrusted with tremendous authority and rule over others. Our leaders do need wisdom and each week I shall continue to pray for you and for them. We need an impartial administration of Justice and only in that way can Peace be maintained at home. We need, as you prayed, to show forth, "Thy praise among the nations of the earth by our Obedience to Thy law." If we would only live up to the truth we do know and understand. We do not need more truth, Mr. President, we need more Obedience.

Then, you concluded your beautiful prayer with these words: "In the time of prosperity fill our hearts with thankfulness, and in the day of trouble, suffer not our trust in Thee to fail. Amen."

I looked for you to pray in the name of Jesus for I understand, from Scripture, in Acts 4:12 that "neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved: save in the name of Jesus."

Once again I thank you for your prayer.

The papers reported you as having read this prayer to the nation and if you, as I am certain you will, make these four petitions the goal of your administration labors, then Heaven will record, at the close of your tenure of office, that on November 4th you Prayed that "old prayer of the church" and that the "old prayer of the church" became your own personal prayer before the throne of grace.

Mr. President, my prayer this morning, in the presence of my congregation, is that God will bless you and keep you and give you strength and wisdom to enable you to guide the America we love safely through the troublesome and perilous days ahead to a real, just and permanent peace both national and international. To help you achieve this end, I promise you my whole-hearted support in the interest of present day as well as future Americans.

Most respectfully yours, ect and submit it for replacing sidewalk and curbing on East and West Trenton avenues, necessitated by the recent street improvement there.

Borough Solicitor Willard S. Curtin was instructed to make an attempt to acquire for the borough the Hurley property at the corner of Cleveland avenue and South Pennsylvania avenue, with a double view of removing an unsightly condition and also to provide a play space for youngsters in that vicinity.

It was voted to build a protective curbing for the light on the northwest corner of the South Pennsylvania avenue-Philadelphia avenue intersection.

Lower Ohio avenue was designated for the prohibition of truck traffic and will be signed shortly.

J. D. Garcia, engineer for Albright & Friel, reported that work is progressing on the new borough settling basins and mixing chambers at the water works plant on North Delmor avenue, with about 70 per cent of the concrete work completed.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore and the other Dr. Kildare characters plunge into another strange adventure in "Dr. Kildare Goes Home," coming today to the Grand Theatre. This time they leave the big city hospital to grapple with disease prevention and a clinic in a town stricken by financial panic, battle prejudice and opposition to cleaning up old wells and other unsanitary spots, and emerge triumphant after detecting and curing a mystery ailment.

Universal's "Private Affairs," described as a modern comedy with a background of Boston's tradition-filled Back Bay, brings Nancy Kelly, Robert Cummings, Hugh Herbert and Roland

Young to the screen of the Grand Theatre, Sunday.

BRISTOL THEATRE

A blue ribbon cast is assembled to bring their current adventure story, "Girl From Havana," to the screen, and the reception accorded this combination by last evening's preview audience at the Bristol Theatre proved the wisdom of casting officials.

Dennis O'Keefe, Claire Carleton, Victor Jory, Steffi Duna and Gordon Jones head the star-studded cast, with such names as Addison Richards, Abner Biberman, William Edmunds, Trevor Bardette, Jay Novello and Frank Lackey among the supporting players.

"The Tulsa Kid" is showing, and "Lady In Question" will be shown Sunday.

RITZ THEATRE

From Syracuse, New York, to Syracuse, Greece, was a geographical jump of some 3000 miles for Allan Jones.

In salary terms it might be outlined as a leap from 15c per hour to as much as $15.00 per hour.

Now Allan enters Syracuse, Greece, by way of Hollywood. Perhaps his greatest triumph to date is his performance in "The Boys From Syracuse,"

TWO COUNTY TEAMS TO VIE FOR HONORS ON FOOTBALL FIELD

Falls Alumni and Diamond Club to Play at Morrisville Field

EXPECT LARGE CROWD

These Two Clubs Deadlocked In Lower Bucks Conference Last Year

With the mythical independent championship of Lower Bucks County at stake, Falls Alumni and the Diamond Sporting Club football teams will stack up against each other tomorrow afternoon at Island field, Morrisville. The largest crowd of the season is expected to see the two leading teams of this section vie for honors.

JOSEPH DIAMANTI

County Conference. A post-season game played saw the Falls Alumni team trounce the Diamond boys. Whether history will repeat tomorrow remains to be seen.

According to the season's records, Diamond is better on paper but football observers who have seen both clubs in action claim it is a toss-up as to whom the ultimate winner will be. The Falls' rooters claim that their club's opposition has been much stronger than that played by the City Line lads.

Both clubs have the benefit of college coaching. Joe Diamanti, who handles the Andalusians graduated from Muhlenberg College while both of the Falls' coaches, Jimmy Doherty and Mike DeRisi pursued their studies at West Chester State Teachers' College.

A glimpse at the record of the teams shows that Diamond has scored victories over North Phillips, 6-0; Holmesburg, 18-0; Norristown, 6-0;

MICHAEL DE RISI

Bristol, 25-0; Langhorne, 6-0; Philadelphia Vagabonds, 25-0. Their lone defeat has been at the hands of Norristown which won the opening game by the score of 6-0. Hence, Diamond is sporting a winning streak of six consecutive wins. It has scored a total of 102 points to their opponents' 6.

Falls opened with a 6-0 victory over Norristown and then defeated West Philadelphia Red Jackets, 13-6. Two losses in a row followed with North Phillips and Trenton Eagles as the victors. Falls beat the Trenton Rams and Red White Horse and in a return game with the Eagles were again beaten, 13-0. The team has scored 47 points while its opponents have registered 43 points.

Both clubs have players who formerly played with various high schools. Diamond has players from Bristol, Bensalem and Frankford High Schools while Falls keeps their pick to its own township high school.

Another point that may be settled with tomorrow's issue is the playing of Big Ed Efling, Diamond, and Walt Wasturki, Falls. Both of these boys crash the line with plenty of power. Rooters for the teams claim that their player is the best line plunger, although season's records prove that Wasturki and Efling have gained about the same number of yards against their foes.

The only pre-game statement has been issued by Coach Diamanti who feels that the teams are about evenly matched and a close game should be the result.

The starting line-ups will be as follows: Diamond, Roberts and Swadis, ends; Smith and Gullatto, tackles; Smuck and Cunningham, guards; Fisher, center; McFarland, quarterback; Efling and Orazi, halves; Belinski, fullback; Falls Alumni, Jadlocki and Duerr, ends; Neely and Wood, tackles; L.

TO ORGANIZE LEAGUE FOR WOMEN BOWLERS

It is planned to organize a league for women bowlers at the Bristol Recreation Center next week. A six team league is proposed and the games will be played in the afternoons. There will be an instructor for each team.

By taking three points from Coffey's Service Station, the Patapar boys continue to lead with the Ford V-8's won 3 from the Auto Boys. "Pop" Anisison was high with 561 against 560 for George Bailey of the Auto Boys.

Voltz defeated Leedom's 3 to 1. Although Leedom's seem to be on the short end, they are showing much improvement.

Winning three points from Y. M. A. the El Bart Boys are out in front with a 4 point margin over Voltz Texaco.

The Crescents won 3 points from Grundy's. Della had a high score of 542 for Grundy's against 506 rolled by Ratcliffe for the Crescents.

Voltz won 4 points from No. 1 Fire Co. The last game was closely played and "Handsome" Lights, the anchor man for Voltz, made a difficult spare to "nose out" the "Fire Eaters" by five pins.

TRENTON RAMS TO BE OPPOSITION FOR A. A. XI

The Bristol A. A. Football Club will play the Trenton Rams, one of the strongest football clubs in the city of Trenton, on Leedom's field, tomorrow at 2:30 p. m.

This club recently played the Falls Alumni to a tie game at Morrisville, and defeated the Hope team of Burlington.

This should be a good game as the local boys are playing good ball. Coach Zefferies has them on their toes at all times, and with better support from the fans they should next season round out a good smart club.

HOCKEY GAME

Tonight the Croydon Ramblers roller hockey club will venture forth to Audubon, N. J., in quest of their fifth Penn. New Jersey League victory at the expense of the Audubon Zephyrs. So far as the relationship go between these two teams, Audubon has yet to defeat Coach Pop Keene's Ramblers.

at the meeting of Edgewood Grange on Monday evening, December 16th.

Henry C. Pickering and Blarri Barnason gave reports of the special meeting of Upper Bucks Pomona Grange, No. 50, at Plumsteadville, where the fifth degree was conferred upon a number of candidates, including two from the local Grange.

At the conclusion of the business session Robert Miller, the acting lecturer, assumed charge. After some group singing he conducted a quiz, during which members identified slogans of well known products. They also answered a number of questions. Out of 29 possible answers, 21 were answered correctly by George H. Yerkes. This feature was followed by impromptu song leading by a number of the members.

The next meeting of the Grange on Wednesday evening, November 27, will be featured by the election of officers.

Rare Shawls Form A Brilliant "Pageant"

Winifred Tracy, Mrs. George LaRue, Mrs. Roy Tracy.

As the fine cashmere shawls were presented to admiring glances, Mrs. Charles I. Bowen sang the "Kashmira Song," the accompanist being Mrs. Albert M. Dowden. The cashmere shawls, Mrs. Megargee informed, possibly present the highest art in textile designs, the finest selling from $500 to $5,000, and often representing one family's life-work.

The exquisite Chantilly lace models, several in number, were much in favor with the audience, which was informed that the French Revolution put an end to such fine art for a time. Napoleon trying later to revive it. The Italian shawls shown were gay in embroidery and lengthy fringe. German shawls, Scotch plaids, Russian kerchiefs, were shown, likewise Spanish models. The so-called Spanish shawl, according to the speaker, is not as a rule made in Spain, but imported from China and Italy. The history of the mantilla proved very interesting, the blond mantilla being worn on state occasions, to bull fights, and for church holidays. One authentic Spanish shawl modelled was made in the Province of Grenada. During this part of the presentation, Miss Winifred V. Tracy delighted with a Spanish dance in costume of that country.

The Ponchos used by cowboys on the range in South America were also considered on this occasion, then turning thoughts to Mexico the shawls of that country were shown, with little Barbara Lynn pleasuring with a Mexican dance, in garb of that country to the South.

Among the early American shawls shown were those of the Indians, an especially fine Navajo one being modelled; then the plain Quaker shawls, and those of the pioneer woman, crocheted and knitted pieces. The society lady of the town of that early day appeared with her shawl, then a Civil War belle, and next came a woman with the "fascinator" of a number of years ago.

Opportunity to ask questions about the soft, rare and beautiful shawls draped about the stage was provided, several of those shown being over 100 years old.

Mrs. Parke M. Wetherill and Mrs. Paul V. Forster were the hostesses of the evening; with the committee in charge including: Miss Anna B. Foster, Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, Miss Christine Appleby, Miss Nora Jones, Mrs. C. C. Hea, Mrs. Allen B. Pearcey, Mrs. L. Knox, Miss Ellen Downing, Mrs. G. R. Refreshments were served as a concluding feature.
